To make an economy bumper sticker:

1. Print on letter paper. If necessary, change printer setting to landscape (long horizontally). Scale if necessary, so horizontal line is about 1-1/2" from top
2. Cut along horizontal line.
3. Place a strip of 2" clear postal packing tape on back. Trim tape so it is about 1/4" larger than paper strip on all four sides.
4. Turn over and place a second strip of 2" packing tape to cover front, and leave about 1" left and right to attach to your car bumper, car window, dorm door, bulletin board etc.

The portrait is of Adam Smith, the father of capitalism, who in 1776 wrote in The Wealth of Nations:

"The necessaries of life occasion the great expense of the poor. They find it difficult to get food, and the greater part of their little revenue is spent in getting it. The luxuries and vanities of life occasion the principal expense of the rich, and a magnificent house embellishes and sets off to the best advantage all the other luxuries and vanities which they possess .... It is not very unreasonable that the rich should contribute to the public expense, not only in proportion to their revenue, but something more than in that proportion."
